SIX STATES YIELD HINT OF 1936 TREND

Democratic pluralities in the two districts.

Seek Brunner's Seat

In the Second district, which covers a portion of Queens county, contestants will fight it out for the seat vacated by Rep. William F. Brunner, Democrat, who resigned to make the race for county sheriff.

The Democratic plurality in that district was 92,214 in 1934 as against 103,987 in 1932.

The other New York City congressional contest is for the seat of the late Rep. Anthony J. Griffin, which has been vacant since last January. Griffin's plurality in 1934 was 19,373 compared with almost 30,000 two years earlier.

Close to 5,000,000 persons are registered for the Empire State elections. In a statement published today, Republican State Chairman Melvin C. Eaton predicted his party would win control of the assembly by at least 10 seats and said the election will be "the most severe setback for Roosevelt reelection hopes received thus far."

Democrats have stressed local issues, though Postmaster General Farley predicted that the vote would "reflect the satisfaction of the people that complete prosperity is nearly here." Herbert H. Lehman attacked Republican leaders in the state for what he termed "reactionary opposition" to liberal legislation.

150 Seats to be Filled

A total of 150 seats is at stake in the assembly balloting. The Democrats now control the assembly by a margin of four votes.

The Philadelphia mayoral joust is between John B. Kelly, who is trying to be the city's first Democratic mayor in over 40 years, and S. Davis Wilson, city controller, a Republican.

Of the more than 800,000 registered over 500,000 are enrolled as Republicans, with Democrats slightly under 300,000.

Cleveland also will elect a mayor. The fight is between Ray Miller, Democrat and former mayor, and Harold L. Burton, independent Republican who nosed out the incumbent, Harry L. Davis, Republican, and former governor, in a three-way non-partisan primary.

New Jersey, Virginia and Mississippi will choose new legislatures and the latter also will select a governor and state officers.

DYNAMITE FROLIC HAS LUCKY ENDING

14, of 245 Park Boulevard, Mowerer broke up one of the sticks and gave a portion of it to Richard Redd, 11, of 239 Park Boulevard, who attempted to set fire to his "gift," police were told.

Police on their search for the dynamite recovered 18 sticks which they believe to be the total of the original quantity. Nothing definite has been learned concerning the source of the explosive but police say it might have fallen from a freight car. The dynamite collected by police was stored in the city barns on Owens street.

Authorities on the use of the explosive today said that there was little danger in handling dynamite at the prevailing temperature. With a temperature above 94 degrees or below 38 degrees, however, the explosive becomes very unstable. At ordinary temperatures a pressure of 60 pounds per square inch is necessary to explode this particular type of dynamite which was 40 per cent nitro.

CLEVELAND TO HEAR SPEECH BY LANDON

Governor Says He Wants To "Sell Kansas" as Battle Brews Over Relief.

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA, Kas., Nov. 4—Gov. Alf M. Landon traveled east today on a "sell Kansas" expedition as state relief officials sought to set the nation "right" on what the sunflower state has done toward caring for its needy and unemployed.

Scheduled to speak before the Ohio Chamber of Commerce at Cleveland, Wednesday night, Gov. Landon left it to a Democratic-appointed relief official to answer Harry L. Hopkins' states Kansas "has not put up a thin dime for relief."

While awaiting a reply to his telegram to federal relief administrator requesting a "correction" on the former's "thin dime" statement, John G. Stutz, executive director of the Kansas emergency relief committee, today opened his files to communications from "new dealers" praising Kansas' relief setup.

Landon, mentioned as a presidential possibility as a result of his program of governmental economy, disclaimed his trip had political significance.

GUNMAN'S MOLL IS FOUND SLAIN

Vivian Chase, Female Public Enemy No. 1, Left Dead in Kansas City.

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 4—Red-haired Vivian Chase, sharp-featured female public enemy No. 1, is dead—apparent victim of a gunman for whom she carried bullets in her purse.

Police renewed their search for John Langan, fugitive bank robber, after the body of the attractive 34-year-old consort of gangsters was found crammed in a motor car near St. Luke's hospital in a fashionable country club plaza district as church chimes tolled the Sabbath. Investigators pointed to this chain of circumstances:

The bullet which ripped through the woman's chest downward from the back of the neck was .45 caliber—like 20 others in her handbag—the same as that which Langan fired into a Kansas deputy Sept. 12 in a gunfight in which Langan's wife was killed.

Three nights later, a gang led by a man tentatively identified by the victims as Langan, terrorized two Platte county farmers. A red-haired woman accompanied him and forced the farmers at machine gun point to obtain liquor for them.

Blood on the running board of the "ride" car, a stolen sedan, led a woman passerby to discover the body, jammed between the seats. Beneath her lay her .38 caliber Spanish-type pistol, a $5 bill and a capacious handbag, in which she carried her weapons, 25 bullets for it wrapped in a blue and white handkerchief, and 20 .45 caliber bullets.

Physicians said she had been dead two hours.

Vivian Chase was a suspect in the kidnaping of August Luer, Alton, Ill., and the seventh "accounted for." Five men and a woman are serving prison sentences ranging from five years to life. Only one suspect, Lloyd "Blacky" Doyle, remains at large.

Officers said she was an associate of Alvin Karpis, now at the top of the department of justice's list of men most wanted.

Fresh weeds caught in the radiator led officers to theorize the woman and her accomplice had parked on a country roadside to divide loot and in a quarrel she was slain before she could jerk her pistol from her purse.

Mrs. Chase's husband, George M. Chase, was killed in a bank robbery in 1923. Many of her subsequent associates met death in gangland's "one way ride."

SELF-RATING QUIZ TO BE CONTINUED

The self-rating quiz conducted last night at a meeting of the senior Christian Endeavor society of the First Presbyterian church will be continued next Sunday night.

The length of the questionnaire, and the thought required for conscientious responses, made it impossible to complete the quizz last night, Rev. J. A. Carriker, pastor, said.

M'AVOY CASH BOND DECLARED FORFEITED

$750 Paid Into County Funds as Man Does Not Appear For Trial.

Failing to appear in Marion for his trial on auto theft charges Friday, L. M. McAvoy, alias McVaVoy of Buffalo, N. Y., forfeited a $750 cash bond for his appearance.

The bond was declared forfeited Saturday and was paid into the office of Clerk of Courts Everett S. Grigsby. Another indictment, charging larceny, stands against McAvoy. A personal bond of $750 has been fixed for his appearance at his trial, the date of which has not yet been set. If McAvoy ever returns to Marion he will be apprehended to stand trial on the larceny indictment, Common Pleas Judge Hector S. Young said today.

McAvoy was arrested following a police investigation in connection with the finding, in June, of a stolen automobile and a large quantity of merchandise in a garage on Union street. A few days later he was freed on $1,500 cash bond, the largest ever furnished in the history of the municipal court. His attorney, Fred W. Warner, previously made an unsuccessful effort to obtain his freedom on a writ of habeas corpus. The second bond of $750, fixed on the larceny charge, was changed to a personal bond recently.

Great Britain's 'Perfect Woman' Challenges U. S.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—Rosemary Andree, who won a contest for Great Britain's "most perfect woman" challenged American women today to match her physical perfection for a $5,000 stake.

"The judges, when they selected me from 50,000 English women told me I had a perfect figure," the 94-pound blond dancer said, "and in the interest of health I'm willing to bet $5,000 on their decision."

The gamble is all on her side, she explained.

"My money and my reputation are at stake. I ask them to put up nothing."

The feminine member of the continental dance team of Gaston and Andree prefers her nickname of "the pocket Venus" to any other.

"Sometimes people call me the 'china doll'," she said with an expression of distaste. "After all I do have some brains, and I do not like to be thought of as doll-like."

FR. COUGHLIN OPENS ATTACK ON CONGRESS

Says Hunting Season on for Members Who Fail To Perform Their Duty.

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Nov. 4—Rev. Father Coughlin launched his National Union for Social Justice today upon a new annual program he said would include "an open hunting season on members of congress."

Opening a series of radio addresses Sunday afternoon, Father Coughlin divided his time between a reiteration of the 16 principles on which he founded his National Union and an outline of its program for the year then abruptly turned his attention to the League of Nations with the charge that through international banking, "the stage is being set for our entrance into another world war."

Father Coughlin said his organization had no desire to establish a so-called third party, and indicated that such political support it might give in the coming national campaign would go to candidates "whose platforms and pledges are in harmony with our philosophy" regardless of party affiliation.

"Every indication in our national legislative and executive life" he said, "seems to point that the slogan 'Roosevelt or ruin' must be altered to read 'Roosevelt and ruin' unless by November we turn the hose of public opinion into the Augean stables of congress to wash out the rubber stamps of moribund minded men who have lost sight of their duty as representatives of the American people."

Declaring "the manipulators of the international chess board are so arranging and planning their various moves that there will be nothing left for our nation to do except sound the call to arms." Father coughlin said "we are being trapped by agreeing either directly or indirectly to the iniquitous sanctions devised by the League of Nations.

"The Italian-Ethiopian war which is engaging the attention of the world is nothing more than a dynamite cap which is planned to blow up western civilization," he added.

"The league was generated to protect an injustice," he said. "It became the false front for British domination of the commercial world."

Referring to a recent statement by Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin that would not sanction England going into a blockade unless he was sure beforehand of the attitude of this country, Father Coughlin said "I have real reason to suspect that the United States secretly, though unofficially, has condoned the sanctions of Great Britain. Nay, I further suspect (unless the prime minister of Great Britain is devoid of reason) that the United States appears to have some tentative plans to cooperate in the sanctions."

of the President and one on the tomb of Mrs. Harding.

Col William C. Christy of Fort Hayes of Columbus, represented President Roosevelt, in placing a wreath on the tomb of President Harding.

Melbourn Moore and Harvey Hoyt, eagle scouts from Cincinnati, placed a wreath on the President's tomb. The wreath brought here each year, is provided for in a private endowment by Cincinnati friends of the late President.

Virginia Llewellyn, accompanied by Dorothy Ann Taylor and Jean Miller, Girl Scouts of Marion, placed a wreath on the tomb of Mrs. Harding. The wreath was from the Marion Girl Scout council given in remembrance of Mrs Harding for her interest in the Girl Scout movement of which she was at one time national president.

The services began at 2 30 p. m when Robert Verburg, Eagle Scout of Troop 5, sounded the bugle call to assembly.

Pledge of Allegiance

The entire assemblage gave the pledge of allegiance to the flag. The band of Buckeye Aerie No 337, F. O. Eagles played "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Rev. Franklin G Markley, pastor of the Epworth M. E. church delivered the invocation. Alfred Donithen, chairman of the court of honor and secretary of the Harding Memorial association led in repeating the 12 points of the scout law, which have been designated as the "Ideals of Citizenship."

Preceding Justice Weygandt's address the Eagles' band under the direction of Gene Williams, presented a program of patriotic selections.

Following "taps" by Robert Verburg, Dr. Sawyer expressed his thanks to the chief justice, the organizations cooperating and to the persons present for their part in the fourth annual pilgrimage to the Harding tomb.

Boy Scouts and Scout executives were present from six other Ohio cities, including Cincinnati, Bucyrus, Findlay, Mansfield, Cardington and Mt. Gilead. Two scouts, William Batchelor of Troop 27 at Mt. Gilead and John Cowgill of Troop 24 at the Marion county children's home acted as orderlies for Col Christy.

The committee in charge of the pilgrimage was composed of J. W. Llewellyn, chairman, Alfred Donithen, Floyd G. Browne, R. T. Lewis, C. A. Hudson, Judge C. U. Ahl of Bucyrus, Nelson Campbell of Mt. Gilead, and Arthur S Brooks, scout executive.

Justice Weygandt's Address

Justice Weygandt spoke as follows:

"You Boy Scouts of the Harding Area council, together with your friends, have come into this presence today to honor him who honored you.

"Nowhere else in this broad land is there a group in better position to know and appreciate the interest of the former President in the purposes and achievements of the great organization of which you are a part. In your desire to honor him you naturally encounter the question, How can this be most fittingly accomplished?

"In attempting to find the answer a variety of suggestions might well be expected. Among them we might hear it urged that these annual memorial pilgrimages be continued. Of course this should be done, and no event should occupy a more important place on the calendar of this community. The simple fact of your journey here today attests your approval of this idea.

"However, I want to ask you boys and girls whether there is not something still finer and more fitting for each of you to do. President Harding once said that yours "is an organization teaching the spirit of service and honor which we must always have in our citizenship."

"What is the significance of the phraseology, 'the spirit of service and honor which we must always have in our citizenship'" Never were truer words spoken, even by a prophet of old But are they of any peculiar personal value today to each of you whose organizations are sponsoring this observance?

"May I with all possible earnestness say to you that in my judgment there is at this time in our nation's history no finer or more essential lesson for any American boy or girl or any man or woman to learn and practice. Furthermore, I intend that this be considered equally pertinent whether we think of ourselves as a nation or as individuals no matter how profound our intellectual attainments, maybe it is equally necessary that we inculcate and cherish the emotion of conformity to 'the spirit of service and honor.

"Each of you boys and girls are obtaining an education to develop your minds to assume a position in solving the problems of life. As you continue your individual ways toward this goal, often ask yourself whether there is anything more important than that you carry this inspiration, 'the spirit of service and honor,' into everyday life.

"One reason I like to read the life of Lincoln is to recount the reasons why he should have been an outstanding failure I like to read the history of Christianity in order to recount the great number of reasons why it was doomed to certain and early failure. And in each I like to read in later chapters how these very elements proved to be the essence of their success.

"The early Christian teachers had to be content with the precedent established by many other religions or requiring merely the itellectual acceptance of their truths. These teachers stated to prospective adherents that they expected this intellectual acceptance as a matter of course. But the real test of the acceptance of Christianity was the willingness and ability to conform their daily lives to the principles taught them in their houses of worship on Sabbath day.

"An important thing for you young people to remember is that you should show a willingness on week days to practice what you believe in your places of worship on Sunday

"In Senator Beveridge's "Life of John Marshall," there is found this statement: 'The country was suffering from that pest of all democracies, namely, the incessant and uninformed demagogue whipping up and then pandering to the passion of the multitude.'

"President Harding would agree that there could be nothing finer than for each boy and girl to so equip themselves mentally and morally that these demagogues can not make them their prey. If you can accomplish this you have done a great service to your former neighbor and a great nation."

REPUBLICANS CLAIM RELIEF IS POLITICAL

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 — The Republican national committee charged today that the sincerity of President Roosevelt's pledge to keep the work relief program free from politics had been "impeached."

Its current issue of "facts and opinions" printed two telegrams challenging Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator, to investigate charges that the Missouri WPA organization had been set up to function as a "partisan political machine."

The telegrams were sent by Arthur M. Curtis, Missouri lawyer and Republican national committee member.

Asserting Hopkins had used "the tactics of a cheap ward politician" in ignoring the challenges, the committee added:

"When facts are put up to Mr Hopkins, he declares dramatically, 'Hunger is not debatable.'

"But corrupt political machines are debatable.

"The integrity of the word of the President of the United States should not be debatable, but it is rapidly becoming so, in an increasing degree each day, by reason of such situations as exist in the state of Missouri, contrary to the public professions of the President."

BOMB TERROR ENDS AFTER KILLING OF 2

By The Associated Press

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 4—Two lives were sacrificed in Milwaukee's eight-day reign of bomb terror, which authorities declare was at an end today.

The dynamite "fiend," Hugh Frank Rutkowski, 21, was blown to bits while tinkering in a garage with what the police said was a crude time bomb.

The blast also killed Patricia Mlymarek and inflicted serious injuries upon her mother and brother. Ten others were hurt less dangerously

Chief of Police J. G Laubenheimer described the bomber as 'an extreme low type of individual with a warped, criminal mind,' motivated by a "craze for vengeance."

Detectives searched the debris to determine whether Paul Chavanek, 19, missing companion of Rutkowski, met the same fate.

Rutkowski's police record began June 21, 1931 It ended yesterday with a terrific explosion on the south side that was heard seven miles away

The steel garage in which Rutkowski tinkered, was levelled, an automobile was reduced to bits and the roof of the building blown several hundred feet away.

Water and gas mains deep underground were cracked by the force of the explosion which shattered windows in the nearby St Vincent De Paul Catholic church tower.

Property damage was estimated at $75,000

FORMER PASTOR HERE PREACHES IN BERLIN

Rev. Albion Ross Reopens American Church, Closed Since February.

A former Marion Episcopal rector, Rev Albion Ross, has reopened the American Episcopal church in Berlin, Germany, according to The Associated Press.

Money given by Americans made it possible to reopen the church, which has been closed since February because of lack of funds.

Rev. Ross, whose son, Albion Ross Jr. is a news correspondent in Berlin, was pastor of St. Paul's church in Marion about 25 years ago, for a period of three years.

Within a few years after he left Marion he was appointed to the Hollidaysburg, Pa., church and for 17 years served as rector there.

Last September Rev. Ross, who is past 70 years of age, resigned and with Mrs. Ross sailed for Berlin to visit their son whose work as a correspondent has several times brought him recognition from Lowell Thomas in his radio broadcasts.

Presumably Rev. Ross was appointed rector of the Berlin church by the presiding bishop, Rev. S. S Hardy, present rector of St. Paul's church, said this morning.

COLUMBUS, O, Nov. 4 — More than 2,000,000 Ohio voters gave final consideration today to the candidate and questions they must vote on tomorrow in this pivotal state in national politics.

But unless one party or the other rolls up unexpected totals, little of national importance will come of the election.

DUCE VOWS TO WIN EAST AFRICAN WAR

was no evidence of the vast force somewhere in the mountains of the north under the commander of Ras Seyoum, Emperor Haile Selassie's generalissimo of the northern forces and governor of Tigre province.

The columns out of Aksum and Adowa, however, were proceeding slowly, keeping a close watch for Seyoum's forces.

Purposely, the Italians were making slow progress. To the rear, engineers built roads, hastening to keep apace with the invaders. The commanders ordered a consolidation of position constantly. It is apparent the Fascisti expect to occupy and develop the territory seized in the advance.

Ras Haile Selassie Gugsa, son-in-law of Emperor Selassie, who deserted to the Italians with many followers, marched with the black shirted Fascisti under general Ruggiero Santini. Ras Gugsa said he wanted to be first to enter his old provincial capital of Makale.

Despite the heavy numbers on the march in the north, there was no outward sign of alarm in Addis Ababa, almost 400 miles to the south.

The Ethiopians had their own celebration. It was the fifth anniversary of Haile Selassie's coronation Confident of keeping his empire independent of Fascist Rome the emperor said.

"Thus far the Italians have encountered only scattered detachments of our troops, who have shown traditional bravery.

"Although the Italians have been attacking a month, our army is still quite intact. Their deathless devotion shall triumph before the God of Justice."

The emperor told The Associated Press correspondent he would, after peace is concluded, continue with his program for the develop- with his program for the development of his land.

This program, he said, will be aided by the concession for development of natural resources he recently gave to American Standard Oil interests. Of this concession, the emperor said:

"It is an integral part of our national economic program as a sovereign, independent empire. We purposely granted it to a neutral country like the United States in order to avoid political complications and international jealousies.

"I am sure that when our country is at peace and the circumstances are again propitious, all terms of the enterprise will be carried out by the original concessionaires who never cancelled the concession, but merely withdrew temporarily at the suggestion of the state department for the worthy motive of promoting international peace."

GREEKS VOTE RETURN OF KING TO THRONE

By The Associated Press

ATHENS, Nov. 4—The Greek people voted overwhelmingly for the recall of former King George to the throne, it was announced officially today, with nationwide results from yesterday's plebiscite giving 1,491,992 for the monarchy to 32 454 for maintenance of the republic.

The foreign minister communicated the results to the former monarch, now in London, and announced that a delegation was proceeding to London.

As the counting proceeded, crowds continued night-long celebrations in the streets and cafes of many cities and towns.

All were waiting for a message from George in London, where news of the royalist victory had been displaced by Gen. George Kondylis, regent who took over the government Oct. 10, in a bloodless coup

RELIEF TO DETERMINE AMOUNT OF LEVIES

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O, Nov. 4—Carlton S. Dargusch, vice chairman of the state tax commission, said today in a detailed analysis of state finances that the amount of new taxes necessary for next year is dependent entirely upon relief needs

This he estimated at $15 000 000 minimum based upon the assumption that the state will have to care only for the "unemployables" with the federal government furnishing work for all able bodied unemployed

"I wish to reiterate," Dargusch said "that the matter of new taxes for Ohio in 1936 will be entirely determined by the relief requirements existing at that time" He recommended that levy of new taxes for relief be delayed until the state's full relief load is determined

In view of the uncertainty of conditions. Dargusch said it would be well for the legislature now to dispose of the tax situation for the time being by merely "reenacting existing laws without new taxes." Among tax laws expiring by limitation are the sales, liquid fuel and cigaret taxes.

WPA PROVIDES FUNDS FOR STREET REPAIRS

street program would be initiated provided the $94,457 in funds is received here, two sub-projects were outlined as most likely to be started.

Brick Repaving

The first calls for an expenditure of approximately $43,000 in federal money to repave with brick the following streets:

South State street from East Center street to Delaware avenue, Elm street from East Church street to Mt. Vernon avenue, East Church street from Elm street to Reed avenue; Oak street from Silver street to West Center street, Garden street from West Center street to West Church street, Olney avenue from West Center street to West Columbia street, Orchard street from West Church street to West Columbia street, Park boulevard from Darius street to McKinley street, and Greenwood street from Mt. Vernon avenue to the Big Four and Erie railroad tracks just north of East Center street.

The second sub-project provides for an expenditure of approximately $51,000 to macadamize various mud streets throughout the city A list of these streets will not be available for a few days, WPA officials said.

The brick repaving project is expected to employ between 80 and 100 men, and it has not yet been estimated how many men will go to work on the macadamizing program

Other street sub-projects set up in Marion, and for which a part of the $94,457 may be used, include the following, cutting back corners of street intersections, remove, clean and relay brick on Charles street; widening South Prospect street; repair manholes and catch basins throughout the city; pave King avenue, widening boulevard paving and construct sidewalks east of Delaware avenue and north of the Harding Memorial; paving Bradford street and Mandana avenue; relay old brick paving on Cherry and Columbia streets; and resurface Windsor, Monroe and Prospect streets, and Bellefontaine avenue.

Ready to Start

WPA officials here said today they are all set to get under way on the street program immediately after funds are released. There probably would be some slight delay in starting the macadamizing of mud streets, due to the difficulty in getting materials at once, but this would move ahead soon after the start of the brick repaving project, they said

Definite word as to whether the Marion project is to be included in the program selected by Dr. Watson is expected here Tuesday or Wednesday.

Meanwhile it was announced today that 240 more more will be added to six projects under way in the city and county. They are: removal of street car rails on East Fairground street and repaving of the area torn up; improvement and beautification of parks in Marion city; raising and leveling sidewalks throughout the Marion residential sections, athletic field work at the east end of Walnut street, work on the extension seating sections at Harding stadium, and construction of a municipal park at Morral.

The addition men are being assigned to the projects to speed them up and to take more clients off of county relief rolls The new assignments will bring to 636 the number of men at work on 18 WPA projects in the county Provided the street construction and repair program goes through as expected several hundred more will leave relief rolls to join in the works program. With the additional men going to work Tuesday 1,075 employables will be left on relief rolls There are approximately 213,200 employables on relief rolls in the state It is expected these will be absorbed on works projects and in private industry by Dec 1, the date set for liquidation of direct relief in Ohio.

District Projects

Projects in the following nearby counties that may be started as a result of the latest WPA grant to Ohio are as follows:

Crawford county—improve road in Liberty township, federal funds, $11 157.

Delaware county—park improvements in Delaware city, federal funds, $13,175.

Hardin county—improve roads in Buck township, federal funds $8 900

RISING FARM INCOME FORESEEN FOR 1936

Agriculture Department Said Demand Likely To Be More Than in 1935.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov 4 — The agriculture department predicted today that the present "upward trend" in farm income will continue in 1936.

"The demand for farm products in 1936," the department said in its annual outlook report "is likely to be greater than in 1935. Consumer buying power in the United States is likely to be increased in 1936, buying power of consumers in many foreign countries also is likely to increase."

The report was prepared by the bureau of agricultural economics after a week of conferences by field representatives from all parts of the country. It discussed prospects for more than 50 farm products.

Consumer buying power is increasing, the report declared because of "improved industrial activity." Though the report said there is expected to be some improvement in foreign demand for American crops it also asserted that there are still severe import restrictions in foreign countries.

The report warned farmers against large production increases, saying they "would tend to check the advance in prices that might otherwise be expected."

A surplus of wheat, with a supply available for export, was forecast for 1936.

Meck Suspended From Court of Appeals at Toledo.

By The Associated Press

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 4—The court of appeals here today suspended Chester A. Meck, Toledo lawyer, from practice in that court for one year.

The decision was in disbarment proceedings instituted after it was disclosed in a suit that Meck had employed runners, or ambulance chasers, to obtain personal injury suits for him.

The court of appeals order excluded Meck from practicing in courts of appeal of the state, but does not preclude his practice in common pleas court where similar charges are pending.

Meck served two terms as prosecutor of Crawford county, O., before coming to Toledo

Married Comrades

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge Is Surprised to Find Benjy Is Small Boy

AS Mrs Hines to whose home we had come to find Benjy sent the call of that name upstairs I found myself emerging from the fog of bewilderment which the woman's talk of a birthday party for Benjy and a cake baked by his aunties had brought to me This I could see was Mr Gibbs notion of a joke to give us the impression that Benjy was and old fisherman and then lead us to a boy

But I did not realize what a fruity jest in Wodehouse parlance was this until in answer to his mother's call there came down the stairs one of the smallest small boys I ever have seen his birthday attire a clean shirt and socks a plaid necktie evidently the pride of his heart a well brushed but distinctly old corduroy suit and brown canvas sneakers

How are you Benjy? Mr Gibbs asked cordially Evidently the preliminaries of this business transaction had a certain etiquette

Just fine Benjy returned How are you?

Couldn't be better Mr Gibbs assured him Mrs Graham who is staying with us and her son and her nephew want to get some bait

Has Queer Dialect

How je do Benjy jerked his head in my direction dismissed the two boys so eagerly watching him with a quick shrewd glance and then took up the business in hand

Waal' he drawled and I never had hoped to hear the word pronounced in just that fashion—I had thought it an exaggeration of the fictioneers I don't know what I kin do fer you If you'd come a mite sooner—I had a lot dug but a man came down from the hotel and cleaned me aout I could go aout and try I might get you some am a all once If you're a mind to wait

We can come back tomorrow I said and go somewhere else today You mustn't miss your birthday party

I shan't miss it he said in matter of fact fashion They'll wait for me I'll take off my jacket and tie and get right aout

Boys Want to Go

Mums A tug at my sleeve accompanied the whispered adjuration but I shook my head I knew what was the request behind the word The boys wanted to accompany Benjy on his digging expedition but I guessed that the sturdy little chap would have no time for strangers upon this particular occasion

Will you leave them with your mother, Benjy Mr Gibbs asked and tell her how much they are" We'll be back for them in about a half hour'

Sure thing Benjy returned busy with his cherished tie, and we went back to the car I explained to Junior and Roderick as I went, my reasons for not letting them go back to dig worms with him

And finally I said you have on your traveling suits, which must be kept in good condition for special occasions up here and for your return journey I'll try to let you come down to see him tomorrow

They lapsed into resigned silence and when we were once more in the car Mr Gibbs had said we would try for worms and crawfish at a sure fire place in Meredith I put an interested almost excited question to him

A Remarkable Lad

How old is that boy? I asked He looks about six

I know Mr Gibbs returned But looks are deceiving things as you probably know Benjy's about 10 years old with the heart of 20 the business energy of 40 and the wisdom of 60'

He gave another of his infectious chuckles

You needn't waste any sympathy on Benjy on account of his birthday party he said He's a good business man but if it had been time for the party he would have gently but firmly put us off for another day

But he had the chance to get us some worms without missing his party so he went for them He rarely lets pleasure interfere with business however I think you'll find Benjy an interesting study—up in this neighborhood we think he's quite a remarkable little lad

MUD SLINGING IN POLITICS

Although, apparently, this has been a quiet campaign I find that most every candidate for office, whether he be Democrat or Republican, is being attacked with vicious stories by irresponsible people, who are not to be trusted.

In my opinion, neither Political Organization is sponsoring such rot. Just imagine how much harm can be done an innocent person's character when he is attacked in this manner and is unable to defend himself.

I sincerely ask all citizens of Marion to resent all stories coming from these vicious tongues, whether the story comes from a Democrat or a Republican.

Any person or organization who spreads this vile Political propaganda and are afraid to print and sign their statements should be branded as a Coward who would be capable of sticking you in the back with a knife.

As some of these Cowards can't find anything against Gene Hill, Democratic Candidate for Mayor, they are trying to divert the attention of the voters by spreading the propaganda that I am trying to run the city.

In reply, to this attack, I wish to say that I am active in Politics because I believe in GOOD GOVERNMENT FOR MARION. And at no time, since I have been elected Chairman of the Democratic Committee have either the Committee or Myself dictated the appointments of any elected Candidate. Although we have refused to indorse those whom we felt were not qualified to fill the position they were after.

HUSBAND SLAIN BY HIS WIFE

Affections of Red-Haired Cigaret Girl Linked to Fatal Shooting.

By The Associated Press

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov 4—Daisy Alexander Root, pretty 20-year-old blond ... on a jail cot today facing a charge of murder for the slaying of her husband, Brenton Root over the affections of a red haired cigaret girl

Root 2? contract investigator for a Memphis wholesale concern and son of a Chicago minister was shot to death at his home early Sunday after a party with his wife and friends at the hotel where the girl Miss Lucile Underwood 21 was employed

Says She Evaded Him

Miss Underwood told officers she once went with Root for three months but evaded him after she learned he was married. She denied she caused the estrangement of the couple. "I didn't love him," she said.

Parents of the slain man, Rev and Mrs Benjamin Franklin Root, were sympathetic with the wife in their grief.

"We will do all we can to make her burden easier" the mother-in-law of the prisoner said. "She hardly realized what she was doing. We don't feel harshly toward her"

Mr Root, rector of St. Simon's Protestant church in Chicago wept and said, "I suppose this woman must be tried"

The wife was quoted by officers as saying she and her husband from whom she separated about six weeks ago went to the hotel with three other couples and they saw Miss Underwood.

Says She Caused Trouble

"She had caused me lots of trouble" Mrs Root declared

She said she resented her husband's attentions to the girl and left, asking another couple to take her home.

Patrolman Bert Hatch and H B Martin quoted her as saying she got out the pistol which "Brenton had taught me to shoot," went to his home and "killed him."

Miss Underwood said she saw Mrs Root for the first time at the hotel.

"She told Brett, 'There's your cigaret girl why don't you buy me a pack of cigarets'" Miss Underwood said "Brett called me 'honey,' and Mrs Root grabbed my arm and slapped Brett. He told her, 'You can keep me from buying a pack of cigarets from her but you can't stop me from loving her'"

She said she left the place after that.

An article entitled "When Will Roger's Wept" written by Rupert Hughes famous author follows

It was my good luck to hear Will Rogers make some of his most uproariously funny speeches As a toastmaster I called on him several times and more than once in such circumstances that there was no chance for preparation and his remarks could only have been extemporized They never failed to be side-splitting

But the occasion that haunts me unforgetably was a luncheon at which Will Rogers was present, along with five or six publishers of Los Angeles newspapers at the Milton H Berry Institute where victims of infantile paralysis broken backs and other disasters are reeducated and so trained that they can rise from their beds or wheel chairs and walk.

Few sights are so touching as the joy these victims take in the slow and often meagre return of lost powers The beholder does not know whether to laugh or cry His heart aches with sympathy and with delight in equal measure On this occasion when we moved among those whom Milton Berry refuses to call patients and insists on calling students we all tried to seem cheerful and to give forth cheer But we were a melancholy lot. Will Rogers however had some uproarious remark for each of them whether a child a stalwart youth a pretty girl an elderly man or woman They hung on his words smiling before he spoke and breaking into roars of laughter at his words And he laughed with them

It was wonderful to see anyone bringing such priceless laughter to the victims of such cruel misfortunes but I could not help wondering how anybody could be so boisterously gay with such people and show never a sign of being touched by their sufferings.

Later I learned that after he had kept them all roaring and writhing with laughter for a long time he asked Milton Berry where the washroom was and slipped away Milton Berry opened the door to hand him a towel and found Will leaning against the wall his head against his arm He was sobbing like a child

Milton Berry closed the door softly unnoticed and when Will came out he went back to tell the students goodbye He was laughing as hilariously as before and he left them in stitches

Berry never told Will that he had looked in upon him weeping It would doubtless have covered Will with chagrin to have been caught in such a surrender to his deep emotions A few months later he was on his way to his poetic death

I had known that he was always doing good deeds in secret but only by accident was it shown that he regarded the provoking of laughter as a sacred mission. Even when his heart was breaking with pity he kept his sorrow to himself

Too many people hide cold hearts behind long faces and solemn phrases Will Rogers was a glorious clown who forbade his tears to flow and let his heart bleed inside him lest the knowledge of his grief should mar the perfect art the priceless medicine and relief of laughter unrestrained There is a saintliness a majesty in such a comedian and no memorial can be too magnificent for Will Rogers who scattered laughter like a rain god blessing a thirsty sultry world

Since the last roll call on Nov 11 1934, there have been 420 workers for the chapter giving 2,155 hours of their time to the various services asked of them

Figured on an eight hour work day it means they contributed approximately 297 days to the chapter with no remuneration other than the satisfaction derived from doing something for their less fortunate fellow citizens

Ten soldiers in remote army posts throughout the world were made happier last year by Christmas bags given by clubs and civic organizations at the request of the volunteer group

The workers themselves made 120 pneumonia jackets 13 ice bag covers and 16 bibs to be sent to hospitals in which veterans are patients

The Red Cross nursing service in Marion county was greatly enhanced by the volunteers They made 138 baby garments which were given out to needy families in which there were no funds to provide clothing for the new arrivals

Augmenting the work of the volunteers in this line of service was the contribution of layettes made by a Junior Red Cross group of the Thomas A Edison Junior High school

Last year at roll call time the volunteers gave up many outside engagements to make 90 Red Cross flags to be displayed during the roll call period When the flags were completed another of the volunteers gave 20 hours time to soliciting merchants in the interest of purchasing a flag for display

In addition to the 2,155 hours given by outside volunteer help two staff assistants gave 40 hours of their time to assistance in the 1934 roll call

Tonsils

Chronic infection of the tonsils is an unpleasant thing and doubtless a menace to health If the tonsils are infected it means that poisons are traveling through the body and nobody can tell when pus formation may take place somewhere in the system

Health examinations are made periodically in the modern school Their purpose is to determine whether or not any physical handicaps and defects exist Such examinations frequently reveal physical deficiencies which had not been suspected As I see it the home and the school should eagerly co-operate in this matter

Enlarged tonsils if they are infected not only give rise to repeated colds sore throat and earache but they produce conditions which may lead to serious complications In spite of these dangers there are many parents who are quite unwilling to have their children operated upon for removal of the tonsils This is too bad because many youngsters would be benefited in general health and physical development and brought up to par as the effect of a simple operation

Of course there should always be a very definite reason for the removal of the tonsils Because they are large is not enough Let us not forget that nature endows our bodies with various parts and structures each of which has some definite purpose to serve There is no doubt that normal healthy tonsils act as a defense against the entrance of germs into the system But on the contrary when the tonsils are diseased they spread poisons through the body they endanger such vital organs as the heart and kidneys

There are two good reasons for the removal of the tonsils First if the tonsils are sufficiently enlarged to interfere with breathing secondly when the tonsils become infected

The tonsils should never be removed however during an acute attack of tonsillitis Always wait until the inflammation subsides

One of the most common complications of tonsillitis is middle ear infection This often leads to accumulation of pus within the ear and may cause permanent damage to this delicate organ

With children who show signs of acute rheumatic fever or St. Vitus dance there should be careful examination of the nose and throat If the tonsils are found to be diseased and enlarged they should be removed immediately It is definitely known that acute rheumatic fever with heart involvement, as well as chorea is more commonly found in children with diseased tonsils than in those whose tonsils have been removed

Slightly enlarged tonsils without signs of infection or interference with normal breathing need not be removed If there is any doubt in your mind it is best to consult with your physician

I Live My Life the feature attraction at the Palace through Tuesday is Joan Crawford as her public likes her She wears clothes that are more than smart she has a new leading man who is one of those "answer to a maiden's prayer" personalities and she has a smooth supporting cast in a story built for Crawford

The plot dashes on at breakneck speed when Joan darling of Park avenue and bored by all the people in her own circles goes on a Mediterranean cruise and stumbles onto Brian Aherne a serious minded young archaeologist intent on digging out a priceless statue he has just discovered He's just the type man she's been looking for but he can't be bothered Used to having everything she wants she sets out to get her man—and they do wind up at the altar after an hour of entertaining dashing hither and thither Frank Morgan is excellent as her wealthy bumbling highball tippling father and Fred Keating is good as the society boy who would like to make Joan happy Eric Blore last seen here as the valet in "Top Hat" is a butler this time and just as funny as ever Aline MacMahon plays a sympathetic role that of a fellow archaeologist who keeps her love for Aherne to herself The picture fairly drips sophisticated dialogue and the settings are knockouts

WHAT THE MILDNESS OF CAMELS MEANS TO FAMOUS AVIATORS

Lieutenant Commander Frank Hawks, U S N R., famous holder of 214 speed records and the Harmon Trophy, says "I've been flying for 19 years and smoking Camels almost as long. Making speed records tests the pilot as well as his plane Camels never make me jumpy or bother my physical 'condition' in any way As the athletes say, Camels are so mild they don't get the wind And I've found they never upset my nerves Camel must use choicer tobaccos"

"Camels don't get your Wind" Athletes say

"Speaking of cigarettes, I make it a rule to smoke Camels" says Mrs T W Kenyon, sportswoman pilot. "They are the mildest cigarette I know Morning, noon, and night, I can smoke Camels steadily They never upset my nerves. And each Camel renews the zest and enjoyment of the last one!"

"They Never Get on Your Nerves"

"I appreciate the mellow flavor of Camels," says Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, the transpacific flyer, in a recent interview. [illegible]

YOU'LL FIND THAT CAMELS ARE MILD, TOO—BETTER FOR STEADY SMOKING

"I smoke Camels all I want," says Col. Roscoe Turner (below), cross-continent speed ace. "Because of their mildness, Camels never tire my taste. A speed flyer uses up energy just as his motor uses 'gas.' After smoking a Camel, I get a 'refill' in energy."

Earthquakes.

The confidence of man in his ability to take care of himself on earth if given a fair chance is shaken by nothing more deeply than by an earthquake. Millions of persons in the United States last Thursday night were made aware without previous warning of their helplessness in the presence of a menace they neither can see nor escape.

In Montana, where the population has been terrorized frequently the last few weeks by earthquakes, frantic mothers fled outdoors with their children while buildings, weakened by previous shocks, collapsed. As far east as Baltimore, frightened citizens flooded telephone switchboards with their questions. The disturbance affected a vast area of the northern United States and Canada.

In this area, nature is usually placid, after its fashion. Compared with the insecurity of the Japanese islands, where earthquakes occur so frequently that every generation has first hand knowledge of them, or with the West Indies, where hurricanes are an annual calamity, the region has virtually nothing to fear. Yet, an earth tremor such as was felt Thursday night is a pointed reminder that the continent of North America is no more static in relation to the ages than one of the rocky islands in the Pacific, thrown up by some deep and perhaps unrecorded disturbance and obliterated by another disturbance.

However, because such things do occur, it is possible to calculate within reasonable limits how much they should be feared. There is, for instance, no reason for Ohioans to have fear, in the sense that inhabitants of truly perilous regions are afraid at such times. Man's reason is sufficient to fortify him against panic when he can be assured there is no probability of a major disaster. An earthquake shakes confidence, as it shakes the ground. It does not destroy confidence, however, because of virtual certainty that the scientists who believe there is no danger are right.

The Stalking Horse.

Selection of Rep. Chester C. Bolton, chairman of the Republican congressional committee, as Ohio's stalking horse in the Republican national convention seems a sign that behind the harmony which strikes the public ear are discords barely concealed by sweet sounds.

Rep. Bolton is the selection most pleasing to the faction within the Republican party which is assiduously avoiding an appearance of seeming friendly with former President Hoover. A previous plan, denied, of course, called for a stalking horse who would bolt to Mr. Hoover's corral at the first suggestion of a stampede.

Rep. Bolton is strongly opposed to Mr. Hoover. What that may mean, owing to the fact Mr. Hoover has given no evidence of an intention to be a candidate, is indeterminate, as many things must be at this stage of preparation for the big effort of 1936. Certainly Rep. Bolton and his sponsors are not strongly opposed to Mr. Hoover's ideas.

Their strategy is concerned chiefly with the mechanics of nominating a candidate. At this distance from next June it seems probable the convention will not muster a majority for any avowed candidate. It will be necessary to choose a compromise candidate, and the stalking horse candidates, including Rep. Bolton, will end their usefulness at that point by dropping out of the picture. It's an old method.

The stalking horse has an interesting part to play. Even though most of them have been in politics too long to have illusions about what they are doing, it must be a thrill, nevertheless, to be mentioned in connection with the presidency. Perhaps there is more of hope and sincerity in them than skeptics are willing to grant. After all, strange things happen when the ponderous machinery of party politics starts to move, and a stalking horse might be mistaken sometime for the real thing.

PROFITABLE INVESTMENT

A Will Rogers Memorial.

The national opportunity to contribute to a Will Rogers memorial will produce a response beyond the greatest expectations of the humorist's countless friends. They are expecting liberality. They are expecting millions of Americans to share in the tribute to a dearly loved character. Nevertheless, it doesn't seem likely they have dared to put as high an estimate on the response as it seems to deserve.

When Will Rogers was killed last summer, the country talked about nothing else for days. The accident in which the humorist and Wiley Post lost their lives was regarded as a national calamity, despite the fact it had no bearing on politics or finance. Therein lies the possibility of a response which promises to be unique in the country's history, perhaps in the world's history.

It is possible to measure the probabilities of ordinary and usual things, because they have happened before. But there never was a man just like Will Rogers, a man whom millions felt they knew intimately, though they never had seen him. He was a product of the press, of the moving pictures and of radio. He was a man who would have been held in warm affection in his local community under any circumstances, but who was able to endear himself to a whole nation, instead of a handful of neighbors.

It is foolish after so many splendid tributes to Will Rogers have been spoken and written to try to devise a new one.

A committee of his friends has provided an opportunity for all who are unable to make a verbal tribute to satisfy themselves with a token for the purpose of erecting a fitting memorial to a dearly loved American. It was a happy thought, and the response will prove it so.

Prices.

The Roosevelt administration, definitely committed to a policy of restoring a price level higher than the prevailing level, finds itself at odds again with the Brookings Institute, which reports that the only true way to recovery is through lower costs and prices. Again, politicians find themselves on the horns of an economic dilemma.

The administration is not necessarily wrong because its theory disagrees with the theory of the Brookings Institute. Neither is the Brookings Institute wrong because it disagrees with the administration. Perhaps the Institute's theory bears more weight, since it is the result of investigation of the facts. But the Roosevelt administration's policy of raising the price level, to the extent that it has been successful, created some of the very facts on which the Institute's conclusion is based.

The United States assumed in 1933 there was a formula for dissolving the depression. Unfortunately, it had no tested formula. The Roosevelt administration had no choice but to make a stab in the dark. Naturally, it chose the line of least resistance. It was the popular impression that, because low prices and depression went together, one could be changed by changing the other. No one disagreed until prices started to get higher. Then, everyone began to have doubts.

There is evidence now that the Roosevelt administration may have aggravated the problem by interfering with natural law. Yet, it is obvious that the administration tried to assist natural law, which invariably has caused prices to increase after previous deflations. Furthermore, if it did no more than some of its critics charge it did, the administration's influence over recovery from the depression has been negligible. Apparently, the principles of economics are too complex for the human mind to master—whether the mind happens to be in the White House or in the Brookings Institute. Yet, because man is a thinking animal, it is impossible to keep him from theorizing. In all probability, if the Brookings Institute had tried first, instead of the government, the latter now would be the critic and the Brookings Institute the target.

Sparks.

President Roosevelt's administrative circle contains few persons, according to most observers, who will be valuable on the stump during the next 12 months. It is apparent the President, himself, will have to do most of the important campaign talking.

Yet, in Secretary Ickes and Mr. Hopkins, Mr. Roosevelt has two men with a positive gift of invective. Mr. Hopkins, especially, is possessor of a sharp tongue. The demonstration he gave of his prowess at the expense of Governors Landon of Kansas and Talmadge of Georgia, with Gen. Johnson thrown in as an added attraction proved something.

It proved, for instance, that the new dealers do not intend to sit passively and take criticism with a smile. It proved, also, that the criticism must be painful. Important men in the government don't waste their time in idle fighting for the fun of it. They fight to defend themselves.

It proved that the new deal will not hesitate to appeal for support on the basis of its spendthrift generosity. Mr. Hopkins scores Gov. Landon because that cautious executive watched pennies, in contrast to the Hopkins method, which is to get rid of as many pennies as possible in the shortest possible time. It seems a good guess Gov. Landon didn't cringe under the charge of tight fisted administration. That happens to be his most attractive characteristic.

As to the propriety of either Secretary Ickes or Mr. Hopkins resorting to abusive language to discredit the Roosevelt administration's opponents, that seems to be a matter of good or bad taste. Further bursts from the two new deal spokesmen will be awaited with interest.

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—Diary: Up and mightily perked with letters from Major Bowes and Elsie Robinson and a photograph came of my wife's uncle, James Gatewood, as stalwart at 86 as most men of 50. And a hail from Frazier Hunt shoving off for Germany and so to peek in Gene Crawley's new avenue offices.

And near Saks a belligerent taxi driver, cozened out of a fare, grew so apoplectic his face turned the hideous purple of raw liver, eyes bulging and tongue lolling. A twit or so on two window cleaners were guttered in a flurry of fists, all the world seemingly in violent rage.

After dark by to look in on Arthur Roche's son Jeffrey, who has become a newspaper reporter and thinks gazetteering an exciting trade. Then to see "Jubilee" and jumped like a shot hearing my name in the lyrics of a Cole Porter song. To bed reading Max Miller's autographed trek of the Alaskan reindeers.

Those who admired—and who did not?—the once popular dance team of Dickson and Hyson were interested in the American debut of the couple's elfin daughter, Dorothy Hyson, in a recent play. The young lady was born in London where her mother, Dorothy Dickson, a Staten Island girl, has been a footlight favorite 10 years. And will be coming over in a play soon.

When Clarence Budington Kelland, the town's saltiest master of ceremony, introduced Mayor La Guardia at a Dutch Treat luncheon, he observed: "The mayor has accomplished a great deal in eliminating unnecessary noises in New York but hasn't gotten as far as speeches by mayors." Kelland also asked Senator La Follette and Edward G. Robinson to take bows as silently as possible. After which he added: "If I have forgotten to introduce any other celebrities, I did it on purpose."

A blight has come to the innumerable pinchy foreign restaurants dotting side streets, especially the luncheon places that buzzed so with activity in the speakeasy era. The Tonys, the Gastons and the Emils. The reason for the decline is their studied insistence patrons order wines and cocktails. With business as it is, lunchers don't want the mid-afternoon slow-up that follows alcohol. That is why the hard counter luncheon places are increasing so rapidly and also flourishing.

There's a story, said not to be publicity pap, that Jascha Heifetz has his $150,000 Stradivarius violin delivered by armored truck at each place he appears and at a cost of $100. Once, another tale goes, he put his violin case down on the sidewalk at an entrance to Carnegie Hall to shake hands with a friend. When he reached to pick it up, it had vanished. He was caught toppling in a faint. The instrument had been carried in by his accompanist, who thought Heifetz knew.

Hill-billy hurrah via Ted Woodyard: A mountaineer and two sons went to town to sell their winter trappings—coon, possum, muskrats and a few fox skins. Each bought ~~new~~ overalls, shoes, a shot gun and spitting tobacco. Finally one exclaimed: "You know we ain't bought a dang thing for Maw." "So they thought a moment and one cried: "I'll tell you what, let's chip in and take her an axe."

Glancing Backward

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Wednesday, Nov. 4, 1925.

Returns from Tuesday's city election showed that City Clerk Earl Hazen, Republican nominee for mayor, had defeated John A. Abel, Democratic nominee, by 30 votes.

A. R. James, 63, who had recently won the corn cutting title of Marion county, decided to try for the corn husking championship also. He issued a challenge to any man or woman in the county to compete with him in a husking bee Friday afternoon on the Avery Peters farm near Meeker.

The latest figure showed Shelby High school leading the North Central Ohio scholastic football league with two games won and one tied. Marion was in fourth place with two victories and one defeat, Ashland and Bucyrus held second and third positions, each having won three games and lost one.

Miss Jean DeWolfe and Miss Elizabeth Carl were hostesses to the Junior Inter Nos of Harding High school at the home of Miss DeWolfe on South Prospect street.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Thursday, Nov. 4, 1915.

A London dispatch reported that half of Serbia was in the hands of the Austro-German invaders and their Bulgarian allies. The first Bulgarian army was only six miles from Nish, former capital of Serbia.

Daughters were born to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Smith of Columbia street and Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Ransome of near Prospect.

Miss Gladys Whitney and Don A. Howard, both of Mt. Gilead, were united in marriage at the home of the bride by Rev. S. E. Sears.

The Druids installed officers headed by Henry Duerst as grand noble arch.

The Mayflower club was entertained by Miss Katherine Francis at her home on Kenton avenue.

Miss Elizabeth Dairy was hostess to the Bay View reading circle at her apartments in the Trumbull flats on South Main street.

Neighborhood History

OLD-TIME JURIST

Ebenezer Lane, according to records, held the first courts of Marion county up to 1829. He lived at Norwalk, and the lack of conveniences for travel then existing made it a long and tiresome journey for him to come to Marion.

Judge Lane was regarded as a gentleman and lawyer of high character and ability. His finely and closely written signature on the old court records gives evidence of modesty and of an even and unruffled nature. He was later elevated to the supreme bench of the state and while occupying that position became noted for the brevity of his written opinions. They were given in a few words, but explained his position admirably. After his term as supreme judge expired he became noted as a railroad lawyer.

Behind The News In

Washington and Wall Street

BY PAUL MALLON

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Nov. 4—An inner view of President Roosevelt's Hyde Park press conferences is generally available only to the few correspondents who regularly accompany him from Washington. The conferences are small, more intimate, affording a better close-up on the man and his method of contact with the public.

Eight men and one woman comprise the public contact delegation this trip. They file into the presidential office. It is a 12-by-10 cubbyhole about one-twentieth the size of his Washington workroom. The approach is direct from the driveway, preventing any view of the interior of the mansion.

President Roosevelt is seated at a small mahogany desk next to the only window, which looks out upon an uninspiring driveway entrance. Callers wonder why he did not choose a large room on the other side of the home, commanding a magnificent view of the Hudson, instead of this ex-servants' pantry.

Sensitivity

The President permits no such wondering. He speaks at once to the callers as they come through the door. He doubts that they were all abed when the earthquake occurred at 1 o'clock that morning. He implies also that some of them may not have been able to feel the shock at that late hour, after an evening of tap room relaxation. In similar vein, they ask if he felt it.

Mr. Roosevelt recalls it very definitely. It awakened him. He realized at once what it was. How long did it last? About 15 seconds. How did he know it was an earthquake? He remembered one as a child. Was there any noise? No, but the sidewise movement of the house permitted him to recognize it.

Behind this close reportorial cross-examination apparently was the fact that all the callers had compared experiences earlier and found that none knew there had been an earthquake, although few of them were asleep and all were within six miles of Hyde Park at the time.

Negative Days.

Did the President act on that Montana earthquake request? Yes, he had sent word to the Army, Red Cross and Relief Administration to cooperate.

What are those pictures on his desk? The 134-pound sailfish he caught on his trip. Some of them show the fish frozen in ice. (Pictures are handed around). Gus (his bodyguard) caught one sixteen pounds heavier, but it was not in very good condition. Also, Gus' catch was ruled out because he got a muscle cramp in his arm while playing it. (Laughter.) Was that a record? No, the President thinks the record catch was 36 pounds heavier than his.

Is there any news at all? No. this is a negative day. The three musketeers, a trio of newsmen who accompanied him on the Panama trip, got used to negative days and did not even try to concoct any news. (Laughter.) Is he having any visitors? (The reply was a negative shake of the head.)

He saw in the papers a suggestion that he was at Hyde Park to direct New York political strategy for Tuesday's election. (Laughter.) Who wrote that story? (All present deny it. Blame is finally attached to an unidentified headline writer, 75 miles away.)

Wonder

The woman reporter asks how the President observed Hallowe'en. He went to bed. Does he have any plans which would make a story? Well, he is going on a family picnic after church Sunday. Anything on Europe? Not a peep has come to him from the state department since he left.

One reporter observes that the President must have had a haircut. Yes, the barber worked on him the other day. (There is some personal banter, off-the-record, about the haircut.)

A reporter says the biggest news of the day was the fact that the presidential secretary, Steve Early, lost $3 to a newspaper man playing golf. The President is astounded at such a misadventure, doubts its accuracy. Mr. Early explains that the newsman claimed a handicap of 125 strokes and then shot 21 under his handicap.

Skepticism

On the way back to town, some hard-boiled veterans among the correspondents begin to ask each other why they were insensitive to earthquakes. They decide the President must be earthquake-conscious. One threatens to let a note of doubt creep into his account. A few half suspect the President may have been fooling, that he dreamed it, or read it in the morning papers.

By JAMES McMULLIN

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 — New Yorkers in close touch with London say British policy in recent weeks has been guided to a surprising degree by England's interpretation of the American attitude toward war developments. British belligerence towards Mussolini in the early stages of his Ethiopian invasion was based to some extent (apart from internal political exigencies) on the belief that the United States could be induced to lend at least moral support to league sanctions against the "unspeakable" Italian aggressor. After all, we fell for that sort of thing with cheers 20 years ago. Why not again?

But this time we made it politely but painfully clear to Downing Street that we were having no part of another "crusade for humanity." Insiders say that was a blow to our British cousins, but—being realists—they knew we meant it. So they removed the chip from their shoulder and started getting conciliatory. All ideas of military sanctions or even a blockade were abandoned—not only because England is unprepared for war—but also because it was feared that transferring African hostilities to Europe would alienate American sympathies entirely. There would be no percentage to Britain in getting herself on our export blacklist for "implements of war."

Informed sources look for no material change in the international situation until after the British election on Nov. 14. They prophesy that on that date the "save-the-empire" slogan will save the Conservative party. Thereafter they expect a speedy settlement of African controversies among Britain, France and Italy (Ethiopia present but not voting). Italy will certainly get territory and probably credit. England will get safeguards in Egypt and the Mediterranean, Haile Selassie will get a kick in the slats from his British pal and protector if he tries to balk.

Ideal

The securities exchange commission's summons to Wall Streeter Mike Meehan to appear for a hearing on his alleged manipulation of Bellanca stock may wind up in a test of the commission's constitutionality. Mike is said to be thinking of just not showing up—on the ground that the commission lacks legal jurisdiction. That would throw the whole thing into the lap of the courts.

Wall Street opinion has been divided all along as to the advisability of forcing a legal showdown on the commission's authority. The heads of the New York Stock and Curb exchanges have been officially opposed to a gesture that could only be interpreted as hostile.

But plenty of conservative financial men disagree and in theory would be glad of a test. The only hitch is they would rather have someone else besides Meehan in their corner. His reputation as a speculator is no asset from the public relations standpoint. On the other hand, you hear it said that in one sense Meehan is an ideal laboratory specimen. He certainly belongs to the professional crowd whose past activities spurred the public demand for exchange regulation. "If he isn't to be regulated—who is?"

Constructive

The recent Investment Bankers association convention was a sounding board—as you might expect—for conservative pleas in favor of economy, a balanced budget and less regulation. But it also offered a couple of significant sops to the new deal cerberus.

It tossed bouquets at the securities exchange commission—which was characterized as "sincere, honest and sympathetic" in its administration of new deal measures. That was a gesture of appreciation for a miracle wrought by the commission—the miracle of convincing investment bankers that they really could carry on legitimate business under the law.

Still more surprising, the association's committee on public service securities turned in a report which—while it vigorously condemned the holding company law as unfair and destructive—went so far as to intimate that regulation of utilities might properly fall within the federal government's sphere if it were founded on fair and intelligent legislation. Insiders say this radical departure from IBA tradition traces to a gradual growth of conviction that some sort of utility control from Washington is inevitable—so the smart thing for conservatives to do is to recognize its inevitability and try to steer it into constructive channels.

Balance

Financial sharps see signs of a new treasury policy towards international currency problems. They claim that the administration evidently intends to help defend the gold bloc against depreciation of the pound sterling. We have in a sense identified our international monetary interests with those of France.

This tends to achieve our object of de facto stablization—since forthright stablization is out of the question at present. The pound is the one major currency now susceptible to wide fluctuations. With the British working to keep it from rising and ourselves and the French working to keep it from falling it is likely to stay pretty much in balance with other moneys.

Expansion

If the holding company act is declared invalid by the courts you can expect a record volume of new corporate financing in the months following the decision.

Many utility companies find they could increase their power output capacity to good advantage and are genuinely eager to expand. But while the court's decision is in the offing their legal status is ambiguous. They feel that investors who would now be reluctant to put their money in holding company securities will jump at the chance when these uncertainties are cleared up. So a verdict in their favor would be the signal for a flock of new issues.

Soft

There's reason to believe that many New York City racketeers are suffering from a bad case of the jitters. While the arrest of the usury sharks by Racket Investigator Dewey is the first major move he has made, insiders have noted a definite falling-off in most of the important forms of chiseling—such as the fake charity racket—in recent weeks. Dewey works very silently and the easy-money boys are unable to learn what he is looking into or where he will strike next. Consequently they're using the soft pedal.

SEE FARMERS IN WATER WAR

Possible Use of Guns Feared as Conflict Impends in Arizona.

By International News Service

MESA, Ariz.—The baby state of the Union appears on the threshold of another war, which if not as bloody as the early day battles, nevertheless will be fought to the highest tribunals of the nation. If it fails to bring long sought justice to the participants return to the only weapon the rugged westerners know—the six shooter—is inevitable it is openly declared here.

The impending conflict deals with the beautiful Salt River valley—rich in farming and agricultural lands—but poor in that which gives life blood for survival—water.

Over half a century ago Mormons migrated from Utah to Arizona territory and took up ranching. Water was plentiful but in a few years the age of "progress" was well on its way. The gigantic $11,000,000 Roosevelt dam was completed.

The settlers, some 500, occupying 50,000 acres of fertile land, were persuaded to join the Salt River Water Users' association.

They were told that water running down the Salt river, which at times was wasted because of lack of use, would be stored in Roosevelt dam for consumption during dry spells.

Join Association

The farmers to a man joined the association but now they claim they are being deprived of their water rights. Instead of the water being held for their use, it assertedly is sold to surrounding communities covering 500,000 acres, and if the farmers want water—their water—they are forced to buy it from the association at exorbitant rates.

Instead of free water or water which at the most previously cost 10 or 15 cents an acre foot, farmers now are paying prices ranging from $1.50 to $2 an acre foot.

High rates demanded for water are forced ranchers to allow their valuable crops to parch under the blistering desert sun. This was once a rich cattle country, but now only a few straggling range cattle are seen because of the water situation.

Others in Fight

Because of the importance of the legal fight now pending, other districts, including Temple between here and Phoenix, 16 miles to the west, have joined the battle. At present 250,000 acres of farming land are affected by the water fracas.

Suit has been filed in the superior courts at Phoenix and soon the first skirmish, in a fight which promises to be one of bitter duration, starts.

In recent months the situation has become more acute and the affair is now being compared to the disastrous Owens Valley water war in California a few years ago.

So heated is the feeling, many involved in the litigation have openly declared they believe blood will flow before the final climax is reached.

Haberman Chevrolet Co. Showing New, Improved 1936 Models

Bigger Bodies, Hydraulic Brakes Among Features

Appearance Enhanced by Reshaped Radiator Grill, New Headlamps and Flowing Lines.

The Haberman Chevrolet Co. located at 295-301 West Center street is presenting the 1936 models of Chevrolet passenger cars and trucks. The new models are the most outstanding passenger car and truck units that have ever carried the Chevrolet emblem.

The passenger cars are divided, as in the past, into two models, Standard and DeLuxe.

The frontal appearance of the new cars is distinctly new and smartly original. The reshaped radiator grill is much narrower and deeper, and slopes at a new and more graceful angle. A distinctive chrome-plated moulding follows the apex of the radiator grill and sweeps in an unbroken line for the entire length of the hood, up to the cowl.

New Headlamp Supports

New headlamps that are smaller in diameter, with increased length, are painted in body color with the rims chrome-plated and are mounted on streamlined supports, projecting from the sides of the radiator shell. This mounting gives a much improved and cleaner appearance to the front end of the car.

The hood has a new and more distinctive styling conforming to the narrower radiator, with the hood louvres being redesigned to give the car a fleeter appearance.

The fenders and running boards have been rust-proofed by an entirely new process known as the "Cromodine Process." This process, while being one of the most effective rust preventatives ever developed, also provides a greatly improved foundation for the coats of enamel which follow.

Bodies Roomier

The new bodies are much larger, roomier and distinctly styled. From the crest of the sleek, chrome plated radiator grill to the tip of the beaver tail rear, the new cars present a succession of smooth, flowing lines and graceful curves. Every contour has been styled for the utmost beauty.

The new Standard Six body interior sets a new "high" in luxury and beauty for low-priced cars. The interior of these new bodies is richer and much smarter in appearance—and it is far roomier than bodies ever before mounted on the Standard Six chassis. The wheelbase has been lengthened to permit the use of this larger body. In fact, the new Standard Six bodies now have identically the same interior dimensions as the Master DeLuxe models—except for length. Seat cushions are constructed to provide the utmost in durability and riding comfort. A new, rich-appearing, higher grade mohair velvet upholstery is now offered, being a softer shade of gray and gives the interior of the car a richer, brighter and more inviting appearance.

New Instrument Panel

The Master DeLuxe interior is richer and much smarter in appearance. The new instrument panel is painted a smooth metallic gray color with the sub-panel that carries the instruments, and the glove compartment door panel, painted a deep shade of gray. The control buttons are of jet black bakelite with ivory lettering and stand out sharply on their lighter background. The instrument dials have a rich ivory background with black figures. A new decorative plate is provided at the center of the panel for the installation of radio controls.

The seat cushions are of a new "luxury type" construction and provide the very utmost in riding comfort. In each seat cushion, spring coils are individually encased in fabric retainers so that there is no possibility of any coil becoming loosened and causing an uneven pressure against the upholstery. The front seat cushions of the coach and town sedan bodies extend the full width of the car.

Upholstery Improved

A new, richer-appearing, higher grade mohair velvet upholstery is now offered in the Master DeLuxe. It is a new lighter shade of gray and brightens the interior of the car materially. In addition, it harmonizes with the balanced color scheme of the mouldings, body hardware and equipment. This mohair is of a new "breathing-back" construction—an entirely new development in upholstering materials and one which is better looking, more comfortable to ride on, and more durable.

Chief among the new mechanical improvements is the equipping of the new cars with perfected Hydraulic brakes, an entirely new and far superior type of braking system. This new braking system is said to be unquestionably the finest braking system that has ever been offered to the buyer of a low-priced car. In these new perfected hydraulic brakes, Chevrolet offers the same dependability and the same long life for which Chevrolet brakes have become famous. Along with these, Chevrolet introduces an entirely new degree of operating ease, stopping ability and safety. The new brakes offer positive and permanent equalization—20 per cent lower pedal pressure—and even easier brake adjustment than before.

Other new features are full length water jackets which insure cooler engine operation, lower oil temperature and lower oil consumption; increased compression ratio; improved clutch; improved knee action and many other new features.

Three new body styles have been added to the Standard Six Chevrolet for 1936. They are: town sedan, trunk sedan and cabriolet.

One of the New 1936 Chevrolet Models

FIND BLOOD SUBSTITUTE

That a substitute for blood for transfusion has been prepared by two of its professors, has been announced by the Ukrainian institute of pathology and labor hygiene in Kharkov, Ukrainia. It is called "ukrinfusin," and is a solution containing all the salts present in the blood. Preserved in phials, it can be kept in good condition for a long time. Physiological tests made in clinics have shown that "ukrinfusin" is superior to any other preparations of similar nature. Its use obviates the necessity of blood donors, whose blood composition must be similar to that of the patient. Quantities of this solution are now in preparation for immediate use, according to the Ukrainian commissariat of health.

Pabst's Beer Now Offered in Convenient Metal Cans

Beer sealed in cans that take up only half the space of bottles in the ice box, yet contain the same amount of "amber fluid," made its appearance in Marion recently.

This new method of merchandising beer was achieved after three years of experimentation and an expenditure of $200,000 by the Pabst brewery of Milwaukee.

The new cans known as keglined "Tap-a-Cans" are lined with much the same substance used to line kegs, which keeps the beer from touching the metal, thus retaining its full flavor, just as the brewery made it. This special lining is an exclusive process developed by Pabst. Faster chilling and protection from light are other advantages of the new can.

The nuisance and bother of making a deposit when purchasing bottled beer are eliminated as well as the expense of shipping empty bottles, because when the cans are empty they are simply thrown away.

All that is necessary to serve the new beer is to tap the can with a tap opener, which shoves the rough edges inside—then the beer can be drunk direct from the can or poured into steins.

Because the cans are thrown away, additional employment is expected to be given to hundreds, since each sale means another can has to be used.

The new package is ideal for picnics or similar gatherings because you can pack a lot more cans than you can bottles, and they are more easily handled than kegs.

The Saratoga Grill located at 302 West Center street, Drake's Tavern located at 220 North Main street and the Ritz Grill located at 134 South Main street are handling the new Pabst keglined "Tap-a-Can" beer.

WINTER STARTING IS EASY WITH ICY-FLOW

Special Oil Remains Fluid in Sub-Zero Temperatures; Lubricates Instantly.

A lot of automobile owners are going to be caught by the first real cold snap—their cars won't start, their batteries will run down and a lot of damage will be done to their motors—unless they change to a winter grade of oil now.

Two very important essentials of oil in winter are: first, it must be fluid at sub-zero temperatures for easy starting. Stiff oil—chilled so that it is often thicker than molasses—makes starting difficult, sometimes impossible. With Icy-Flow in your crankcase the oil is as fluid as though it were June weather. Icy-Flow, at any temperature from 30 degrees below zero to 300 degrees Fahrenheit, maintains the correct body, and gives excellent lubrication qualities. Second, it must lubricate instantly to avoid damage to the motor during the thaw-out period. It takes approximately 10 minutes for a cold motor to warm up after starting. Thus even though you get started, the oil may not be lubricating, simply because it is too thick during the thaw-out period. Icy-Flow has the advantage of lubricating right from the start.

By using Icy-Flow motor oil you save yourself needless winter expenses, besides the delay, inability to keep appointments on time, worry and fuss caused by frozen crankcase oil.

You can obtain Icy-Flow at Goerlich's Low Price Station located at the corner of North Prospect and Mill streets. Hubert Goerlich, the proprietor, is ready to serve you in preparing your car for winter driving.

This month starts the photographer's Christmas business, and if you want to have an exceptionally good picture with more time to be spent in its making, you had better make your appointment now. Later you'll wish that you had taken this advice.

A photograph of yourself, your family as a group, or of the kiddies, is always a well appreciated and well liked gift and is always cherished by those receiving it.

One of our most common faults is the neglect of making enough photographs. As the years roll by, a lot of pleasure can be had by looking at photographs taken in the past. A photograph enables you to recall things that you did, persons you knew, and various events of your past life which would otherwise be forgotten.

Dale Hughes, who owns and operates the Bauer Studio located at 126½ South Main street is a portrait photographer of distinction. He not only guarantees you perfect satisfaction in every picture, but also prompt and courteous attention along with a very reasonable charge. Make an appointment to have your picture taken by Mr. Hughes now, and avoid the Christmas rush.

MAKING UP a shopping list

The hall needs a new rug. More towels are needed for the bathroom, and the kitchen floor could certainly stand a coat of paint. The children need shoes. The car will soon need tires. Well, we buy a hundred new things every year.

Scattered throughout the United States are manufacturers who make the very things we need.. Their products are on sale in certain stores within easy reach. Certain of these products, and certain of these stores, are especially fitted to take care of our special need. But which products and which stores? Which can we afford, and which do we think is best? We must look to advertising for advice.

Advertising is the straight line between supply and demand. It saves time spent in haphazard shopping. It leads you directly to your goal. By reading the advertisements, we can determine in advance where the best values are to be found. With the aid of advertising, shopping becomes a simple and pleasant business, and budget figures bring more smiles than frowns.

From the pages of this paper you can make up a shopping list that will save you money.

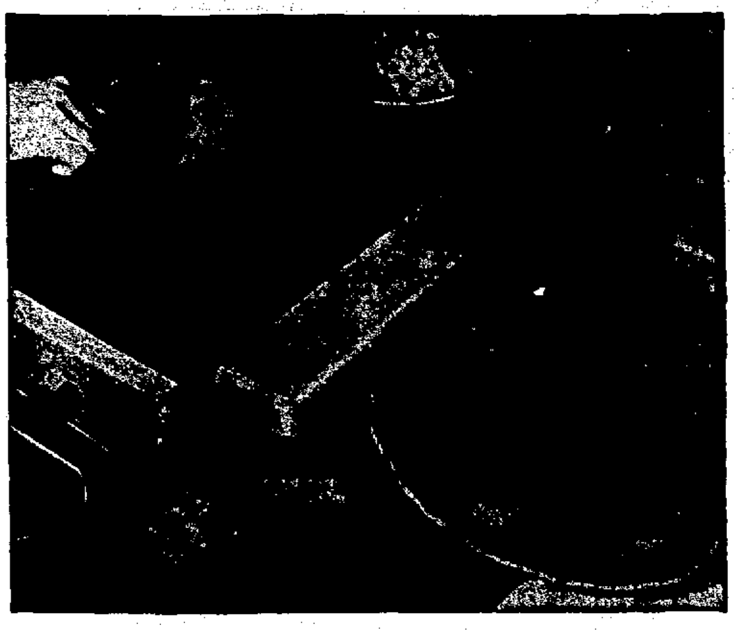
PRUNE SURPRISE ROLLS, NEW AND DELICIOUS



Unusual croquettes of delicious flavor and texture, are these prune surprise rolls. Serve them as a luncheon main dish or as part of the supper menu. See recipe below.

Twelve cooked prunes; one small tomato peeled, one small can peeled green chili peppers; six slices boiled ham cut about one-eighth inch thick; eight to nine cups white bread crumbs (one pound loaf); three eggs; six tablespoons milk; deep fat for frying. Bread crumbs should be mediumly fine and free from crust. And a little dry.

Slit prunes down one side and remove pits. Cut tomato in small wedges and use these to refill the wedges of the prunes. Divide the peppers into strips and wrap around the filled prunes. Place two prunes on center of each slice of ham; bring ends together and pin with wooden picks.

Combine eggs and milk and beat until well blended. Add about half the crumbs, or sufficient to thicken the egg mixture until it will adhere to the rolls. Pat mixture into the ham rolls until covered, then roll in dry crumbs, leaving the ends of the wooden picks exposed. Lower in frying basket into hot fat and fry until a golden brown color, turning to insure even frying. Lift to paper toweling and drain. Remove wooden picks before serving. Serve very hot. Makes enough for six.

HIGH COURAGE

by Jeanne Bowman

(Copyright, 1935, by Jeanne Bowman)

SYNOPSIS: Anne Farnsworth just has learned that Rob Crocker, her former fiance, is cheating the Farnsworth Fisheries, of which he is general manager, by surreptitiously owning three of the fish traps old Luke Farnsworth had detested. Anne has, apparently, been left out of Luke's will; she finds also she is not even his adopted daughter. Her "relatives" have turned her out, and she is living on a small allowance among the disgruntled fishermen who serve the Farnsworth canneries.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

First Step

ANNE thought of her foster uncle, Lee Farnsworth. She went back in memory to her earliest recognition of him as part of her world. She had never known him to do an unfair, unjust act. She had never known him to be unkind. His only fault had been his good-natured, easy going disposition.

But he had stood by her that one time. He had defied Charlotte, at what must have been considerable cost to his peace of mind. Perhaps if he realized what was going on he would fight to see that Luke's wishes were carried out.

"How can I reach him, without revealing my whereabouts," she pondered. "I don't want to risk seeing him, though I would if it were necessary."

And then she decided she could write to Judge Kellogg, who, having read the will, could approach him on the ground of the canneries' failure to obey the terms. It would save her writing direct, for she wasn't sure the letter wouldn't be waylaid so he would never receive it.

Satisfied with her decision, she looked up. John was standing near, watching her. "Feel better?" he asked.

Anne nodded and just then a call came from George. It was time to haul in the catch and John sprang into action. Even Milna, who had been curled up on the galley bench asleep, stood by.

Anne watched entranced as the net was hauled in, the steady glare of the boat's searchlight playing on the fish as they came flipping over the side. A giant chinook flopped out of the net and Orvi uttered a cry of triumph. A good omen for the boat, it was all of 30 pounds.

George tossed a flat flounder back into the water. "Plap" it went and Anne laughed as she imagined it cutting the lower waters like a blade in its rush to reach the shadowy security of the bottom. There was a sturgeon, too, to betaken home and baked by Tecla.

It was a good haul; a good omen. Satisfied, they put back to town, nosed into a wharf from where Anne, huddled in John's coat, could see the Farnsworth Fisheries, the silver letters of the sign gleaming out beneath the wharf lights.

She thought of another time when she had looked up at the long green buildings. So much had happened in the short span of time between; so many things which Luke had given the best of his life to perfect were being undone. And she was helpless to interfere, her hands literally tied by the will Luke had left.

And yet, Anne felt that there was something yet to come, some crisis for her to meet. [illegible]

And she thought of John's concern over some possible danger to her. Foolish that, but pleasing. He had asked her to trust him. She did, though she wondered how she could trust any one after the way her implicit faith in Rob had been shattered.

Anne awakened the next morning with the realization that she had been at the Sorkis an entire week, and that she was that morning to unpack the things sent down from Portland.

After hurrying through breakfast and the housework, she and Milna rushed up to the cottage where John had left the boxes, barrels and trunks, opened and ready for them. Anne had one moment of panic as she saw the crowded room and realized that here were things which would definitely tie her to memories of the past.

There was the great cedar chest with its neatly packed layers of linens; the barrel of dishes. And there were odds and ends of furniture. Smoking stands, coffee tables, book and wall shelves, a radio, and one deep chair with an ottoman to match.

Anne looked at the chair and wished she might do away with it. It was to have been a birthday present to Rob. When she had bought it she had imagined she could see him: dark head against the cushioned rest, herself sitting on the ottoman looking up at him.

That was it, always with Rob she was looking "up." He had demanded it, and because of his years of seniority she had given it. Never had they met on common ground such as she and John were meeting on daily. But why compare Rob and John? She wasn't in love with John.

She would give the chair to Liisa, surely the sight of Liisa's top-knot sliding back and forth would serve as an antidote for any unhappiness she might have at seeing it in the room.

Liisa was delighted when Anne presented it to her that noon. She was delighted with everything. She marched from room to room with pencil and pad, as Anne sat writing a letter to Judge Kellogg; which Liisa would take into town to mail.

The letter off, Anne relaxed. Uncle Lee would arise to this challenge. The fishermen would be treated fairly and she....well, somehow the days would pass.

The days did pass. Closed season came on and the boys were free to help with the new home, and "the boys" included John. Not that he was there too often, for there seemed always to be someone calling him to attend to this or that. But it was often enough to make the house seem lonely without him.

And the days passed without hearing from Lee Farnsworth. Judge Kellogg wrote once, and eagerly Anne took his letter to her room to scan it.

Dear Anne:

I saw Lee, yesterday. Had a time seeing him because Farley found out, by some hook or crook, that I was in the outer office and insisted upon attending to Lee's business for him. Farley looks pretty disgusted. ... Luke to keep him ...

However, eventually, I ... [illegible]

There was more but Anne paid little attention to it. She would wait, she decided, and give Lee time for his investigation. Then if things didn't change, she would act. How she didn't know, time to worry about that later.

It seemed to Anne she had never been on as many picnics; that these Finnish people made a picnic of everything. There were trips to a deserted quarry for old stone with which to build the fireplace; there were picnics inland for plants for their rock garden; and there were picnics along the beach to gather drift-wood which must be stacked and dried and cut.

Sometimes Anne wondered at the happiness of these people with their simple pleasures, wondered, and grew radiantly happy with them.

"If only I didn't have to go away," John said to Anne the Sunday before he sailed. They were aboard the boat, heading for a picnic in a cove up the river. "I wish I hadn't signed on, and yet I'm going to need the money. I'm going to buy that trawler because I want to work for myself."

Anne smiled at him, unable to put into words the desolation she felt at his going.

They beached the boat on smooth sand, built a fire for the inevitable coffe, then sat in the sun talking while the younger children scurried along the beach picking up shells, making sand houses for the waves to wash down, wandering inland for spring flowers.

Tecla and John's mother, a tall, red-haired Irish woman, sought the shade of a tree for their knitting and gossip. Liisa soon joined them, leaving John and Anne alone.

For a long time the two lay stretched in the sand in the shelter of a rock, listening to the slap of tiny waves.

Nikki runs away from John, tomorrow.

The Stars Say—

For Tuesday, Nov. 5

A DAY of some enterprise, initiative and progress is shown by the lunar transits, but these fortuitous prospects are beset with difficult situations and discouragements. Patience, persistence and practical constructive work may win out, but loans and financial hazards should be avoided. There is prospect of a profitable change or journey if wisely manipulated.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of enterprise, initiative and some good opportunities for progress and prosperity, although these may be attended by difficulties, delays and disappointments. Industry, application and courage may offset these forebodings, but shun all manner of financial peril.

A child born on this day may be talented, original, constructive and hard working, but rather easily discouraged or depressed. It should, however, make a fair success in its enterprises if careful with its funds.

Puddings Are Delicious Served With Light Menus

When the dinner menu is light, the dessert should be something more than cooked fruit or a cup cake. These puddings are easily made, and delicious served hot with a sauce. The combination of hot pudding and sauce makes a perfect winter dessert.

Cottage Pudding

One fourth cup shortening; one half cup sugar; one egg; one half teaspoon vanilla extract; one and one half cups pastry flour; one and one half teaspoons baking powder; one fourth teaspoon salt; one half cup milk.

Blend shortening; add sugar slowly, beating in well. Add unbeaten egg and flavoring; beat until well blended. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk; mix well. Bake in well greased baking pan or small ring mould in moderate oven, at 350 degrees F, about 30 to 40 minutes. Serve warm with lemon, chocolate or other sauce. Makes eight servings.

Empress Pudding

One third cup shortening; three fourths cup sugar; two egg whites; one and one half cups pastry flour; one and one half teaspoons baking powder; one fourth teaspoon salt; one half teaspoon vanilla extract; one half cup milk; one half teaspoon each cinnamon and nutmeg; one half tablespoon molasses.

Blend shortening; add sugar slowly, mixing in well. Add unbeaten egg whites one at a time, beating well after each addition. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt; add alternately with milk to first mixture. Add flavoring. To two thirds of this mixture add cinnamon, nutmeg and molasses. Put into greased pudding mould a spoonful of light mixture then a spoonful of dark mixture alternately, as for marble cake. Cover tightly and steam for two hours. Serve with sauce. Makes one large pudding for six to eight servings.

Steamed Chocolate Pudding

One fourth cup shortening; three fourths cup sugar; one egg; one half teaspoon vanilla extract; two and one half squares unsweetened chocolate, melted; two cups pastry flour; two teaspoons baking powder; one fourth teaspoon salt; one cup milk.

Blend shortening; add sugar slowly. Add egg and flavoring; beat well. Add melted chocolate. Sift together dry ingredients; add alternately with milk to first mixture. Pour into a large or several small, well-greased moulds; cover tightly; steam two hours. Serve with whipped cream or sauce. Makes one large pudding or twelve small puddings.

Butterscotch Rice Pudding

One third cup rice; one half cup cold water; three cups milk; two tablespoons butter; one cup brown sugar; one fourth teaspoon salt; one tablespoon gelatine.

Wash the rice and cook until nearly tender in a double boiler with two cups milk scalded and the salt. Meanwhile cook together in a shallow pan, the brown sugar and butter until it becomes very dark brown but not burnt. Add this to the rice and milk and finish cooking until the rice is tender and caramel melted. Pour cold water into a bowl, sprinkle the gelatine on top, add one cup hot milk, and stir until dissolved. Add the gelatine to the hot rice mixture and turn into a mold rinsed in cold water. Chill. When firm, unmold and serve with any fruit sauce, or with whipped cream. Enough for six.

Coffee Rice Pudding

One half cup rice; one and one half cups strong freshly made coffee; two and one half cups milk; three fourths cup brown sugar; one half teaspoon salt.

Wash rice and place in a baking dish. Add the remaining ingredients and cook in a moderate oven, 325 degrees F. for two to three hours, or until the rice is soft and the mixture is thick and creamy. Stir occasionally during the first hour of the baking to prevent the rice sticking to the bottom. Enough for six.

The Marry-Go-Round

BY HELEN ROWLAND

MATRIMONIAL INSURANCE

It seems that you can be insured against almost anything, except the risks and hazards of matrimony.

They'll insure you against fire, flood, hurricanes and sudden death. But they won't insure you against divorce. Or unhappiness.

They'll insure your house against lightning and your windows against breakage. They'll insure your horse, your dog, your automobile, your furs and your jewels.

They'll even insure you against bad weather on your wedding day. Or on the day of your college football game. They'll insure you against accidents, old age and against the possibility of having twins. Oh yes, they will!

If you are a dancer, they will insure your toes—or if you are a violinist they will insure your fingers. And one popular comedian is said to have had his nose insured. But they won't insure your heart or your happiness!

The most out-of-date, battered old schooner can start out for a three months ocean voyage to the Antipodes, and Lloyd's or some other insurance company will bet you that it will arrive safely with its cargo. But no insurance company will bet that your Good Ship of Matrimony will weather the domestic storms for a single week.

In short, you can get insurance against all of the elements—except the human element! That is regarded as too big a risk.

The only matrimonial insurance which you can take out is that whereby two people insure themselves against failure and unhappiness, and both are willing to pay the premium.

Charm, beauty and intelligence won't insure a woman against making a mess of her marriage. Nor will wealth, success and power insure a man against making a failure of his marriage. Reno and places like that thrive on charming and beautiful women and wealthy and successful men.

The only thing that will buy matrimonial insurance is mutual love, consideration and understanding. ... [illegible]

STEELS, RAILS KEEP LIST UP

Motors and Some Utilities Stage Minor Recessions Under Profit Taking

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK Nov 4—Quiet demand for selected steels rails, and specialties kept the stock market generally higher despite profit taking in some recent leaders which dropped from the top. Some of the utilities managed a moderate retreat. The news was unchanged either way. The hesitancy here was attributed to seasonal factors.

The expected action of the Chinese government in going off the silver standard and nationalizing the white metal while bringing a further slump in Hongkong and Shanghai dollars was not an especially disturbing market factor. Some of the domestic silver mining stocks actually moved up on the news. It was felt that reduced Chinese exports and buying by the United States treasury would sustain silver prices.

DISTILLERS RESUME LIQUOR ADVERTISING

regard to the state liquor department.

I am running this department honestly and efficiently and am running it without interference from any source he said Certainly I resent the effort to besmirch my good name.

Louis B Seltzer editor of the Cleveland Press a Scripps Howard newspaper, said the e that both the governor and James Miller are so confused and so inconsistent in what they are doing and saying we cant make heads or tails out of it

The director reiterated a charge both he and Gov Davey have made against the Scripps-Howard newspapers that their criticism of the liquor department and their assertions that the department had discriminated in the purchase of liquor was actuated by a desire for bigger and bigger advertising revenue from the liquor interests

Miller concluded his statement 'All responsible distillers will get a fair share of the state business our whole policy has been built on this basis

The National Distillers Corp did not amplify its brief statement issued in New York The National Distillers Products Corp has resumed all Ohio newspaper advertising which was withdrawn a few days ago due to a misunderstanding since cleared up

Neither Miller nor Gov Davey was available immediately for comment on the action of the distillery in resuming its advertising

Expression of Sentiment

It has been pointed out by those in charge of the drive that the Will Rogers movement is not an ordinary fund raising campaign but rather an opportunity for Wills millions of friends to come forward to assist in a nationwide effort to perpetuate his memory in a manner befitting his lifetime efforts to help humanity The success of the drive must depend on the number of people who subscribe to the fund and it is believed by those in charge that enough of his admirers will come through to make the effort worthy of the man for whom it is made

The Will Rogers Memorial commission has been selected from among friends and associates of the late humorist without regard to politics race or religion Every penny subscribed will be used for memorials to Rogers While the type of memorials has not been selected members of the commission have announced that they will sponsor no cold shaft of marble but that there will be living continuing memorials projected in keeping with the charitable, educational and humanitarian traits which were beloved in Rogers
